POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

Organization: Department of Environmental & Occupational Health Sciences
Title: Lecturer or Senior Lecturer, Full-Time

Search #

The Department of Environmental & Occupational Health Sciences (DEOHS) within the School of Public Health at the University of Washington invites applications for a full-time position at the rank of Lecturer or Senior Lecturer (non-tenure track, 12-month renewable appointment). The successful candidate will serve as Director of the Department’s Continuing Education (CE) Program. DEOHS has a robust program in both occupational and environmental health, including a regional OSHA Training Center. We value interdisciplinary education, diversity, and community engagement. The successful candidate will bring an innovative approach to the delivery of education to diverse constituencies, including health care providers, occupational health professionals, state and regional officials, and leaders and practitioners of environmental public health throughout the Pacific Northwest. The Department’s long-range plan for CE is focused on greater integration of its offerings with the Department’s academic offerings, development of a safety certificate for working health and safety professionals, and increased e-learning offerings. This position will be supported through a steady combined revenue stream from the DEOHS-housed self-sustaining budget revenue (i.e., course registrations), Medical Aid and Accident fund biennial allocation, and a federal NIOSH training grant that includes a mandatory continuing education component.

Qualifications
- Degree in environmental health sciences, occupational health, or a related field. A Masters Degree is a minimum requirement
- Evidence of at least 24-months practical experience in the field of public health
- Evidence of successful management of educational programs that serve diverse audiences

To Apply:
Applications should be sent to lect@uw.edu and include a letter addressing the candidate’s experience, scholarly and pedagogical qualifications, and a Curriculum Vitae or Résumé. We also encourage applicants to include a statement describing their experience with diversity and their potential to support of the department’s commitment to diversity. Applications received by April 30, 2018 will receive priority consideration. Any questions regarding the position or application can be sent to Richard Fenske at the above email address.

For more information about DEOHS visit http://deohs.washington.edu/.

The UW School of Public Health is committed to a diverse academic community. We view diversity as essential to our mission; for more information visit http://www.washington.edu/diversity/. The University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research and service. The University of Washington is an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to, among other things, race, religion, color, national origin, sex, age, and status as protected veterans, or status as qualified individuals with disabilities.